Awards: Los Angeles Family Housing (LAFH) held its eighth annual L.A. Family Housing Awards Oct. 10 at Universal Studios-Hollywood. During the event, at which nearly $500,000 was raised, area residents and activists were honored for their contributions to the community.

LAFH: Contributors honored.

Actor Danny Glover received the Sydney M. Irmas Outstanding Humanitarian Award. Studio City resident David Fleming, chair of the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce and the Economic Alliance of the San Fernando Valley, received the L.A. Family Housing Legacy Award. Also, Oakwood School of North Hollywood, the community of which has long volunteered for and supported LAFH, received the Friend of the Family Award.

Roosevelt Redmond, a former L.A. Family Housing client, rounded out the event by giving a testimony about how LAFH helped his family transition from homelessness to a three-bedroom apartment in the agency's newest affordable housing development in Van Nuys.
